

Institutional holiday - memory for life!

math homework

Suppose, in your institute in a week a holiday "Miss and Mr. Institute" will be held. Everyone is invited to take part in this event. Of course, in almost every team there are active people who agree to take part in any case. But, nevertheless, the overwhelming mass of people does not burn the desire to spend their precious time in vain.

Such people immediately begin to build all kinds of excuses, "like:" Oh, I have a number to the dentist for 14-30 this friday "or" Today I can't be at this event and especially to take part in it, Because My relatives come from Magadan. " Brad, who speaks students, is sometimes striking. It would have been a relatively fortunate to miss this event if they though they were folded, but even a lie to come up with too lazy.

If you feel about such a contingent, then I will tell you that you lose, without going to the speech.

What do you lose without going to the institutional holiday?

1. You will lose respect for teachers. Many events organize a group curator or someone from the most active teachers. If you do not repente to visit the concert prepared by your teacher and he learns about this (and he learns, because Sarafan radio is working everywhere remarkably), then you will fall in the eyes of your teaching and it can significantly affect his favors on the test or examination that, in turn, negatively reflects on reaching progress.
2. You will lose respect for classmates. Your comrades prepared a concert for the entire university and for you, in particular. They are not even so important that people from other streams will think about them, you closer you, familiar to them for them, who previously always helped them in a difficult moment, and now, when the guys from your group stand on the scene it is very important to be Yes, from acquaintances was in the auditorium. They seek contact with your eyes with you, and, in the end, are looking at strangers. From this, their speech will not be so bright what it could be if you were next to your team.
3. Forget about memories. And the most, probably, the monstrous thing, which will happen to you, if you do not go to the speech, this is what you make the possibility of school / student memories. The rabid rhythm of modern life sometimes encourages to stop, look into the past, to reminister the former years.

And if you have always gained all the events that educational institutions have prepared for you, then, in adult life, when you meet with classmates, classmates to you and there will be nothing to answer the phrase: "And remember how we ...". You will sit and think that then made a monstrous mistake, saving only an hour of your time. As economists would say, having benefited in the short term, you suffered huge losses in the long term.

And now we will show you that you would have acquired, going or, even better, participating in events organized by your school or university.
